The batteries were broken down into platoons and squads; all were located in Neustrelitz. All these units

3. Units Subordinate to the 65th Guards HT-SP Regiment, 9th Guards Tank Division

Unit	Location	CO
Motorized Rifle Battalion	Neustrelitz	Unknown

One battery of 57 mm AT guns: two platoons of two squads each

Two companies of riflemen: breakdown unknown

One Battery of 82-mm mortars: two platoons of two squads each

4. Units Subordinate to the 2nd Light Artillery Brigade

The 2nd Light Artillery Brigade was directly subordinate to the Second Guards Mechanized Army. US Army OB indicates that Oranienburg is in the territory of the 4th Guards Mechanized Army. The 2nd Light Artillery Brigade was activated in November 1950 and only air force units were in Oranienburg up until that date. The following units were subordinate to the Brigade:

Unit	Location	CO
96th Light Artillery Regiment	Oranienburg	Unknown
94th Light Artillery Regiment	Oranienburg	Unknown
90th Rocket Launcher Regiment	Oranienburg	Unknown
590th Light Artillery Regiment	Oranienburg	Lt Col Koshe-lyov

The 590th Light Artillery Regiment was divided into two battalions, each of which had three batteries and a headquarters platoon. Each battery had two platoons which in turn were broken down into two squads each. They all were located in Oranienburg

5. Location of Other Units

I saw the following units but can give no further information concerning them: a tank division in Oranienburg; a regiment of jet bombers at an airfield in Oranienbrug; an artillery division near Spandau (Berlin); and an artillery officers' school in Fuerstenberg.

6. Units in the USSR

The 2nd Guards Rifle Division stationed in the area of Alabino (5532N-2700E) and Kovrov (5625N-4118E), was directly subordinate to the Moscow Military District. The Commanding Officer was a Brigadier General (Genmajor) Arkhangelskiy. I cannot remember the APO number. The unit's historical name is Tananskaya Krasnoznamennaya Ordena Suvorova i Kutuzova i imeni Kalinina (Tamansk Red Flag, Order of Suvorov and
